June in Florida: Heat, Humidity, and Hilarity

Ah, June in Florida! The month when the sun decides to turn up the heat and reminds us all that we live in a giant sauna. You step outside, and it's like walking into a warm, wet blanket. One that smells suspiciously like the last fish your neighbor tried to grill. That's right, folks, June is here. And it's not just hot, it's melt your crayons hot.

You know, in June, nature seems to wake up as if someone poured a gallon of fertilizer on it. Flowers burst forth in a riot of colors, and the trees have the audacity to flaunt their greenery like they're in a botanical fashion show. The birds are chirping, and the squirrels are chasing each other like they're training for the Olympics. And the mosquitoes? Well, they're just having a buffet. And guess who's the main course? That's right, us!

We Floridians have a love-hate relationship with June. On the one hand, it's the start of summer. Which means beach trips, boating, barbecues, and the annual quest for the perfect watermelon. On the other hand, it's also the month when you realize your air conditioner is not your friend. It's your lifeline. You walk into your house, and if it doesn't feel like the Arctic Circle, you know it's time to call your HVAC guy and offer him a small fortune.

And let's not forget Father's Day! In June, we celebrate the dads who are armed with their trusty grills. These are the men who attempt to cook meat to perfection while simultaneously battling the swarms of flies that seem to have formed a union. You know the scene. Dad is out there flipping burgers, while Mom is inside making sure the kitchen doesn't spontaneously combust. You've got the kids running around, trying to dodge the heat and the occasional stray spark from the grill. Then somewhere in the background, Uncle Bill is regaling everyone with stories of "the one that got away" from his fishing trip last summer.

But there's something special about June in Florida. It's a time of year when the sunsets are painted with hues of orange and pink that make you feel like you're living inside a postcard. You can almost hear the waves lapping at the shore and the laughter of families enjoying their time together. As the heat settles in for the summer, we Floridians embrace it with our flip-flops, sunscreen, and good humor.

So, here's to June in Florida! To the sunburns, the thunderstorms that roll in like they own the place, and the sweet taste of ice-cold lemonade on a porch swing. It's a wild ride, but it's our wild ride. And I wouldn't trade it for anything, except maybe a cool breeze and a nice A/C unit that works like a charm.

Meditation

Meditation has gained traction in recent years as an effective means to promoting personal wellness, and those considering the practice should know that it does not require a significant time commitment. The Mayo Clinic notes meditation has been practiced for thousands of years. Perhaps the practice has proved so enduring because of the myriad emotional and physical benefits it offers, which the Mayo Clinic notes include self-awareness, improved mood, a lower resting heart rate, and improved sleep. The amount of time required to meditate depends on the individual and the type of meditation he or she practices (the Mayo Clinic cites guided meditation, mantra meditation, mindfulness meditation, and Quigong as some popular ways to meditate), but Verywell Mind reports that experts typically recommend meditating for somewhere between five and 45 minutes each day.

How to conduct a skin care self-exam

Time spent soaking up the summer sun is one of the things that makes the season so appealing. Warm outdoor air has a calming effect that can make anyone feel more relaxed and comfortable.

As good as warm summer sun can feel, overexposure to the sun can be dangerous. The World Cancer Research Fund reports there were more than 330,000 new cases of skin cancer diagnosed across the globe in 2022. A significant percentage of skin cancer cases can be prevented, and prevention is a multifaceted process that includes skin care self-examinations. Self-exams do not take up much time, and individuals can speak with their physicians about how frequently they should check their skin for signs of skin cancer. The U.S. National Library of Medicine offers the following instructions for how to conduct a skin self-exam.

- ~ Choose the right time to examine your skin. The USNLM recommends conducting a skin exam after bathing. Women who routinely conduct breast self-exams can check their skin at this time as well.
- ~ Use a full-length mirror. It's not always easy to examine skin throughout the body. But signs of skin problems can occur anywhere on the body, including areas that might be hard to see without help. If possible, conduct a self-exam of the skin in front of full-length mirror in a brightly lit room.
- ~ Identify what you're looking for. The USNLM notes you should be looking for any new skin markings. This includes bumps, moles, blemishes, and changes in skin color.
- ~ Pay close attention to preexisting moles. A potential sign of skin cancer includes moles that change over time. Examine preexisting moles to see if they have changed in size, texture, color, and shape.
- ~ Look for unusual moles. The USNLM characterizes certain moles as "ugly duckling moles." These unique moles look and feel different from nearby moles and may be indicative of skin cancer. Speak with a dermatologist if a self-exam uncovers the presence of moles with uneven edges or differences in colors or asymmetric shapes. Moles that look different from one side to the other also should be brought to the attention of a dermatologist. Moles that do not stop bleeding or will not heal also merit examination by a skin care professional.

When the time comes to conduct the exam, the USNLM recommends following these steps:

- Look closely at your entire body, both front and back, in the mirror.
- Check under your arms and on both sides of each arm. Be sure to examine the backs of your upper arms, which can be hard to see.
- Bend your arms at the elbow, and examine both sides of your forearm.
- Examine the tops and palms of your hands.
- Examine the front and back of both legs.
- Examine your buttocks and between your buttocks.
- Examine your genital area.
- Examine your face, neck, the back of your neck, and scalp. Use both a hand mirror and full-length mirror, along with a comb, to see areas of your scalp.
- Examine your feet, including the soles and the spaces between your toes.
- Ask a person you trust to help examine hard-to-see areas.

Skin cancer poses a formidable threat, but many cases of the disease are preventable. Routine skin self-exams are a vital component of skin cancer prevention.

Skin Cancer
is the 17th most common cancer

The World Cancer Research Fund reports that skin cancer is the seventeenth most common cancer across the globe. The United States, Germany and the United Kingdom had the highest number of skin cancer cases in 2022, and the U.S. also had the distinction of having the most deaths from skin cancer (7,368) in that year. Though individuals with naturally darker skin tend to think they might not be as vulnerable to the disease as fair-skinned individuals, that is not necessarily true. While it is true that fair-skinned individuals must be especially careful when spending time in the sun, the American Academy of Dermatology notes that skin cancer in patients with darker skin tones is often diagnosed in later stages of the disease when it's more difficult to treat. Simply put, all people, including those with naturally darker skin tones, must take the threat of skin cancer seriously and take every precaution to protect their skin when spending time in the sun.

Give soul food the spotlight

Soul food is a style of cooking made popular by African Americans with roots in the rural southern United States. The ingredients used and cooking style associated with soul food may evoke strong feelings of home, family and togetherness. Soul food features components of west and central African cuisine, as well as European influences. Common ingredients include beans, cornmeal, pork, and greens. Although soul food originated in the south, today it is found across the country. This means plenty of individuals can experience and enjoy delicious soul food, including this recipe for "Grandma's Collard Greens" courtesy of "Virgil's Barbecue Road Trip Cookbook" (St. Martin's Press) by Neal Corman.

Grandma's Collard Greens

Serves 6-8

- 1/2 pound uncooked bacon, diced
- 2 1/2 pounds collard greens, stems removed
- 3 cups chicken stock
- 4 tablespoons white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon creole seasoning
- 1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper

- 1. Heat a large saucepan on high heat, and render the bacon until crisp.
- 2. Add the collard greens and saute until they begin to wilt. Add the remaining ingredients and lower the heat to a simmer.
- 3. Simmer the greens until tender, about 30 minutes.

8 games to try at the next backyard bash

Games can enhance any outdoor function. Whether at the beach or in one's backyard, activities can keep guests entertained in between the food and other refreshments. And the good news is that most games designed for these types of functions are appropriate for players across a wide range of ages.

The following are eight games that can add to the excitement of any outdoor gathering.

- Ladder toss: Also known as ladder golf, this game requires players to toss string-attached balls onto a ladder-shaped target. Points are awarded depending on which rung the ball lands on.
- Kubb: Pronounced "KOOB," this Swedish lawn game believed to have originated during the era of the Vikings and is best described as a blend of bowling and horseshoes. Two teams compete to knock over their opponents' wooden blocks by throwing batons.
- Cornhole: Many people have played cornhole, which involves tossing bean bags at the cornhole board. The objective is to get the bag into the hole or on the board to score points. The game can be played as singles or doubles. The first team to reach 21 points wins.
- Spikeball[®]: Also called Roundnet, this two-on-two sport is played by hitting a ball off a net with the goal of preventing the opposing team from returning the ball within three touches.
- Ring toss: This is another game that tests hand-eye coordination. Players take turns tossing the rings onto the target pegs. Each peg is worth a different number of points. The first player to reach the agreed-upon amount of points wins.
- Connect four in a row: Giant versions of familiar tabletop games also are available for yard use. With this game, players need to get four chips in a row, either up and down or diagonal.
- Kan Jam[™]: Similar to cornhole or horseshoes, Kan Jam[™] features two teams of two that alternate between throwing a frisbee and trying to deflect it. The goal is to get the frisbee into the can.
- Rollers: Goals are placed 25 feet apart and then players roll wooden discs to try to get closest to the goal. Each side of the disc has a different number to determine the point value.

Backyard events can be enhanced with some game play. There are plenty of fun options for your next gathering.

Tangy cheese gives this salad a kick

Summer party season requires having plenty of refreshing, and easy-to-prepare offerings for family, friends and other guests. Salads come in all shapes and sizes, and can feature a versatile mix of ingredients to help customize their flavor. They're also refreshing and easy to prepare and serve on hot days or nights. "Chickpea, Feta and Orzo Salad" puts a Mediterranean-style twist on the summer salad. Feta cheese gives it richness and tang, while chickpeas pack a protein- and fiber-laden punch. Enjoy this recipe, courtesy of "Cooking Light" Fresh Food Super-fast" (Oxmoor House) by the Cooking Light kitchens.

Chickpea, Feta and Orzo Salad

Serves 4

- 1 cup uncooked orzo
- Cucumber-Thyme Relish (see below)
- 1 cup refrigerated pre-chopped tomatoes
- 1 16-ounce can chickpeas, rinsed and drained
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/3 cup (1.3 ounces) crumbled feta cheese with basil and sun-dried tomatoes

1. Cook pasta according to package directions; drain and rinse under cold water. Drain well. While pasta cooks, prepare Cucumber-Thyme Relish.
2. Combine tomato and chickpeas in a large bowl, tossing gently; stir in pasta, salt, and Cucumber-Thyme Relish. Add feta cheese; toss gently.

Cucumber-Thyme Relish

Yields 2/3 cup

- 1 1/2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 1/2 cup chopped English cucumber
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped red onion
- 1 tablespoon fresh thyme leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Combine lemon juice and olive oil in a medium bowl, stirring with a whisk. Stir in cucumber and remaining ingredients.

Father's Day around the world

Many countries around the world celebrate Father's Day, but not all of them do so in June. The most common date for Father's Day celebrations is the third Sunday of June, when the U.S. and Canada celebrate the holiday. In 2025, that day will be June 15th. Many European countries with sizable Catholic populations, such as Spain, Italy and Portugal, celebrate Father's Day on March 19th, which is known as St. Joseph's Day on the Catholic liturgical calendar. St. Joseph was the husband of Mary and the foster father of Jesus Christ, so he is widely recognized as the patron saint of fathers. In Scandinavian countries, Father's Day is the second Sunday in November, which many believe to be an attempt to boost the economy during a month when retail businesses are not particularly busy. In Germany, Father's Day is tied to Ascension Day, which comes on the fortieth day of Easter. Australia and New Zealand celebrate dads on the first Sunday of September, while Brazil celebrates Father's Day on the second Sunday of August. No matter when Father's Day falls, the holiday marks a great time to show dads just how special and loved they are.

A man walks into the therapist's office and says,
'I think I might be a dog.'
The therapist offers him a seat, and the man responds, 'Oh I'm not allowed on the furniture.'

Gus's Animal Gossip

Dog parents can practice pet etiquette

Dogs are popular pets. Forbes Advisor reports 65.1 million households in the United States have a dog, and there are roughly 89 million dogs in the country. According to Dogster, Canadians own about 7.9 million dogs as of 2022.

People have grown accustomed to treating their dogs like members of the family, and that means that dogs increasingly are being brought along on errands, traveling with their human companions, and even being brought into the workplace. It's important for pet parents to always be mindful of their dogs' behavior when out and about, or even hanging closer to home. Dog owners can follow these dog etiquette pointers to be responsible pet owners.

- ~ Get permission from your employer before taking a dog to work. If you plan to take your pet into the workplace, whether during Take Your Dog to Work Day or Take Your Pet to Work Week, or any time of the year, it is best to check with management to find out if this is allowed. You must be mindful of people's dog fears or allergies and be respectful of others no matter how much fun it might be to bring your dog into a public space. The warm and fuzzy feelings dog owners feel for their dogs are not necessarily shared by everyone.
- ~ Quiet nuisance barking. Do not leave your dog outside unattended for a long time. This can cause what the American Kennel Club characterizes as boredom barking. Quiet your dog if he or she is barking, or bring the pet indoors.
- ~ Always leash your dog. Some people are not comfortable around dogs. And even if your dog is friendly, others met on walks or outings may not be. To prevent uncomfortable situations or even dog bites, it's best to always leash your dog. Choose a leash short enough to prevent your dog from jumping on passersby.
- ~ Ask permission first. Check to see if your dog is allowed to greet people or other dogs. If someone says, "no," respect that answer.
- ~ Clean up after your pet. Always have waste bags at the ready so you can clean up after your dog. This also applies indoors, should your dog have an accident inside a pet-friendly store.
- ~ Be mindful of shopping with pets. Many stores do not allow dogs inside, but employees may be hesitant to approach pet owners about such policies. Many stores only allow trained service dogs that are Americans With Disabilities Act-compliant. Service animals are defined as dogs that are individually trained to work or perform tasks for people with disabilities. Service animal designations are exclusive to dogs. However, a number of people have "emotional support animals," which are not recognized as service animals. As a general rule of thumb, know a store's policy on non-service animal pets before visiting. And, when shopping at food stores, it's best to leave the dog at home.
- ~ Train your dog. A dog that knows basic obedience training will behave better in the community. If you are having trouble training your dog alone, consider working with an experienced dog trainer.

Dogs are beloved members of the family. However, pet owners should practice proper etiquette when dogs are out and about.

Did you know?

According to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, approximately 3.2 million cats enter animal shelters across the United States each year. A sizable number of cats also enter shelters each year in Canada, where Humane Canada reports just under 61,000 cats were taken in by shelters in 2021. Each of these figures underscores the need for cat adoption, but each also represents progress or at least a leveling off over previous years. The ASPCA reports that 7.2 million animals entered shelters across the U.S. in 2011, 3.2 million of which were cats. Though it would be better if that figure had decreased instead of leveled off over the 10-year period between 2011 and 2021, it does indicate campaigns to promote spaying and neutering cats to avoid overpopulation have been successful. Cat shelter populations have decreased in Canada in recent years, as Humane Canada reports that figures exceeded 78,000 in 2019 before dropping below 61,000 in 2021.
